

Swinging the Shotmaker

The key to an effective swing is just like real golf. The goal is to make a smooth, unrestricted swing. Take aim and visualize the shot, then slowly take the club back, by pushing down on the trigger, and then accelerate the club into the ball, by pulling up on the trigger. Selecting the right club for the shot is often a matter of whether the shot is on-target or if it is long or short.

Positioning the Ball

Position the ball between the center & toe of the club face. Align the club face with the target before swinging.

Playing the Game

After unpacking the contents of your M.I. Golf Game, you get to choose the layout and difficulty of your own course. After setting up the green to your liking, you can figure a scale of one foot equaling 20 yards. With this you can place the Shotmaker a few feet for a Par 3, and up to 30 feet for a Par 5. Look over the entire hole and choose a strategy. Do you “go for it” or “play it safe?” Once the club is selected for the shot, you line up the club with the ball and push the trigger down and then pull-up to make your swing. You should hardly touch the top of the carpet and let the mechanism go to work as you strike the ball.

The ball will then go into the air (like a real golf ball) and may land on the green with some backspin. You then replace your ball with one of the putting marbles, switch clubs and put in the putter, and then line up your putt and go for BIRDIE!

After completing the first hole, the person who has “honors” (won the hole) designs the next hole to play. This is where your creativity and imagination come into play, because you can adapt each hole to the surroundings that you have inside.

A Par 3 is usually 5-12 ft. and is sometimes over a chair or uses a hardwood floor as water to create an island green effect. Par 4's measure 14-24 ft. often using furniture or walls to create a “dogleg.” Par 5's are 25-32 ft. requiring three shots to make it to the green and sometimes you can use stairs to make an extreme height change from the top of the stairs to the floor below.

Sounds like a lot of fun, right? IT IS!
